Hints. 0 YOU ALL LOOKED SO COOLER. I ADMIRE THAT. I HAVE A VERY LARGE TUMBLR WITH 300,000 VIEWS. WELCOME TO MINE!!! Hilarious Game(Where Does the Time Go?)By:AxxieMan- 18 Awesome game with funny story-line. And as usual its based on questions, with the the opposite answer being assigned with a red square to the other color of the answer. What's the question? When you were a kid, you wanted to time travel. So you set up a time machine, but it was too difficult to set the exact amount of time to go. So you did the only thing you could do: you set it to automatic. But the problem was that you never got to go in time at all, so you forgot all about it. Once you grow up, you lose interest in traveling to the future. You meet someone new, and both of you set the time machine to auto. So you start to get bored, because you've been in this small apartment your whole life, and now your time machine is just an old time machine in your basement. You don't feel like going to your old house, so you forget all about your time machine, and you stop to think about everything. You get scared that maybe the time machine is still there, because if it is, what if the time machine can travel to the future? You'll never get to go back to the future, and never see your old house again. You become scared because the future doesn't look very good. And so you leave your job, and you decide to leave the country. You set the time machine to auto, and you think about the future, but then you think back to your old house, and to the past. You wonder if it's possible to travel to the past, you don't even know if it is possible, but you decide to ask. You get in your car and go to your old house. You drive up, and you see the house, you think back to when you were little and you loved going to your old house, and you start to cry. You miss your old house, and you start to feel sad. You love your old house, and you don't want to leave it. You turn your time machine off and get back into your car, and you realize that you don't have the slightest idea what to do 82157476af
